Other Options

Community Information

Community Description	This location is a very friendly work environment which welcomes international students. Tourists from all over the world visit this resort community. North Carolina is one of the most popular tourist destinations in the United States. The Outer Banks (also known as OBX) is a 200-mile (320-km) long string of narrow barrier islands off the coast of North Carolina and a small portion of Virginia. They cover most of the North Carolina coastline. There are several towns close to each other: Kitty Hawk, Duck, Kill Devil Hills, Nags Head and Corolla.
Surrounding Area	This is a beach town. Public transportation is very limited. Your housing is within walking distance to shops, stores and the beach. This is an area that has much to offer international students.
Local Altitude	300 feet above sea level
Local Clothing	Winter clothing, jeans, long sleeved shirts, T-shirts, jackets, layers for cold weather. Comfortable walking and working shoes. Spring clothing the temperatures get warmer, light jackets, in the evening and pants may be needed. Day time temps are in the 70's. Summer temps are very hot and appropriate summer clothing is needed.
Local Temperature	The winters are typically milder than in inland areas, averaging lows in the upper 30's and highs in the lower 50's-60's degrees Fahrenheit. Mild winter days, average temperature 50-60 degrees Fahrenheit. Cold winter nights, average temperature 20-30 degrees Fahrenheit. However, the exposure of the Outer Banks makes it prone to higher winds, often causing wind chills to make the apparent temperature as cold as the inland areas. Spring - Lows in high 30's F and highs in mid 70's F. Spring -average temperature is 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The summer months average lows from the mid 70's to highs in the upper 80's, depending on the time of the summer. The spring and fall are typically milder seasons. The fall and winter are usually warmer than areas inland, while the spring and the summer are often slightly cooler due to the moderating effects of being surrounded by water

Local Things To Do

Located in Nags Head is the largest sand dune on the East Coast, Jockey's Ridge. The sand dune has migrated over the years from wind and erosion, and has buried a miniature golf course along the way. Also buried is The Old Nags Head Hotel. The area surrounding Jockey's Ridge is good for biking, or hiking. Jockey's Ridge has been popular with Hang-gliders since the advent of the sport, as well as kite flyers and sand gliders. The Ridge includes an informative museum with exhibits on sand, weather, and area animals. The creatures outside are numerous and includes bird species, foxes, mice, squirrels, occasional deer and friendly wild rabbits. One of the most exciting features of the Ridge is its capriciousness. Annual visitors find that lagoons can spring up, and the sand can shift making for a fresh experience every time. From the top of the Ridge, the ocean as well as the sound can be seen. Jockey's Ridge has a sound beach on the Roanoke Sound side that visitors can swim in.

The Nags Head Woods Ecological Preserve is 1,092 acres (4.42 km²) and lies North of Jockey's Ridge and east of Roanoke Sound. It was designated a National Natural Landmark in 1974.

As in any other beach town, the ocean and shoreline are the major attractions, providing beaches for swimming, sunbathing, and a variety of water sports. A series of historic cottages overlook the beach in sections. There are three piers, Nags Head Pier, Jennette's Pier, and Outer Banks Pier which are popular for fishing. The town also features miniature golf courses and small amusement centers with go-karts and bumper cars for family entertainment.

Other attractions include various National Register of Historic Places in or near Nags Head, such as the following:

1. Bodie Island Lifesaving and Coast Guard Station
2. Bodie Island Light Station
3. Nags Head Beach Cottages Historic District
